

WANT CASE REOPENED

Sutton Case Will Be Brought Before the Public Again, Making the Third Inquiry.

(Herald Special.)

Washington, D. C., March 9.—The "Sutton case," which has already been the subject of two naval inquiries, is to be brought before public attention again and from all indications it is destined to be as prolific of official investigations as the Brownsville affair. Today a joint resolution was introduced in both houses of congress asking for a thorough reinvestigation into the death of Lieutenant James S. Sutton and of all the events leading up to the tragedy. Simultaneously, it is understood, the mother of the lieutenant will institute proceedings in the civil courts of Maryland.

Lieutenant Sutton died at Annapolis as a result of a wound in the head caused by a pistol shot on October 13, 1907. At the time of his death the lieutenant was a student at the marine school of application. According to the testimony given at the first investigation Sutton quarreled with a brother officer as they, accompanied by several other officers, were returning in an automobile from a dance at Annapolis to the barracks. There was a fist fight after the party left the automobile in which Sutton is said to have been vanquished. The testimony tended to show that he went to his quarters and obtained a revolver with the intention of shooting his antagonist. He fired one shot at Lieutenant Robt. E. Adams of the Marine Corps, but did not strike him.

Lieutenant Edward P. Roelker, another Marine Corps officer, who was a member of the party, attempted to intervene and struggled with Sutton in an attempt to disarm him. A second shot from Sutton's pistol pierced Roelker's clothes, but did not penetrate his body. According to the testimony Sutton, who had been thrown to the ground in his encounter with Roelker, then shot himself in the head.

A board of officers appointed to investigate Sutton's death rendered a verdict that he had committed suicide and that no person was in any way responsible for his death. About a year ago, as a result of an agitation on the part of the family and friends of the dead lieutenant, the matter was reopened and another board appointed to inquire into the circumstances of the tragedy. It was rumored at the time that sensational disclosures would be made and that the arrest of one or more Marine Corps officers on the charge of being concerned in the death of Lieutenant Sutton might follow. Numerous witnesses were summoned, but after a thorough investigation the board arrived at the same verdict as its predecessor, namely, that Sutton had come to his death by his own hand. The mother still maintains, however, that her son did not die by his own hand, but that his death was the result of a conspiracy.

TO WOMEN OF THE SOUTH

Everlasting Memorial to Women of the Confederacy Unveiled at Rome, Georgia, Today.

(Herald Special.)

Rome, Ga., March 9.—An everlasting memorial to the women of the Confederacy was unveiled here today with interesting exercises in which every veteran in gray who was physically able, and many a one who was not, participated with an energy and enthusiasm which defied the life-sapping years that have gone since they bore arms for the south. Prominent members of the United Confederate Veterans, the Daughters of the Confederacy and kindred organizations came from all parts of Georgia and from neighboring states to attend the unveiling. Touching sentiment was heard on every side and the thanks of the entire south were offered by the orators of the occasion to the great camp of the Sons of Confederate Veterans, who originated and carried to a successful conclusion the first memorial of the southland to the women of war times. The ceremonies were presided over by Dr. C. J. Owens, former president of Anniston College.

Remember Forrest.

(Herald Special.) Philadelphia, March 9.—In pursuance of a custom inaugurated many years ago the anniversary of the birth of Edwin Forrest, who was born in this city March 9, 1806, was observed today by the inmates of the Actors' Home at Holmesburg, which institution was founded by the celebrated tragedian. Here, surrounded by pictures, books and stage mementoes that made up the great art collection owned by Forrest, the venerable actors and actresses, bent with the weight of years, gaily repeated the scenes of their former triumphs on the stage. The entertainment was well attended by numerous invited guests, among them a number of well known players now filling engagements at the local theatres.

Well, I am back and ready for business. I find there are other tuners in the field, but that is all right; there is work enough for all, and if I can't get all the work I can do without running down other tuners, I just won't get the work, that is all. I will get to my old customers as soon as possible. If you are in a hurry just drop me a card, or phone 1084. Would be glad to take any new customers that want me to do their work. Satisfaction guaranteed. Yours for piano tuning, H. M. Jones, Box 814. 2-23-11 platform. The loss is covered by insurance. The blaze is believed to have originated from a spark from a passing engine. The cotton was owned principally by the local citizens, Messrs. C. H. Boyd, W. S. Conway and Marion Robertson owning a large share of it. Cotton owned by Herman Loeb of Shreveport and Merrifield, Ziegler & Co. of Dallas was also damaged by fire.

NOTES OF INTEREST.

TERRIBLE CROUP.

One Who Knows Recommends a Remedy to Anxious Mothers.

My little boy, who is four years old, had suffered a lot with croup. On several occasions we thought he was gone.

After trying all the old time remedies and most of the new, I came home one night at midnight, and my wife said, "The boy has the croup again—suppose you get a bottle of Hyomei." "More junk," I said, "but we will circulate our money so they all will get some."

I hastened to an all night drug store, brought it home. In five minutes he was breathing easier. In fifteen minutes he was sound asleep. It broke the croup so quickly it scared me.

Anyone wishing to cure the croup of a child I hope will give Hyomei a trial.

Wishing you the best of success, which you surely deserve, I remain, Jos. E. Clark, 204 6th St. S. E., Washington, D. C., Oct. 7, 1909.

Hyomei is a remarkably effective remedy in case of croup and it should be in every home where there is a croupy child. Full instructions how to cure croup comes with each outfit.

Complete Hyomei outfit, including inhaler, costs $1.00 at druggists everywhere, and at Bratton Drug Co. It is guaranteed to cure catarrh, coughs, colds and sore throat.
